BLACK BALL GEARS FOR NEW FERRY

Major extension of ferry wharf facilities in the Inner Harbor is planned by Black Ball Ferries Ltd., which intends to apply for lease of foreshore shown by dotted lines in the photo. City council has ordered a thorough investigation of all angles before giving its consent. The additional area, 100 by 125 feet, would extend the wharf to within an average of 60 feet from the Causeway. It would serve the new ferry Mv. Coho, experted to start year-round service to Port Angeles in December. See story Page 17.

U.K. Lauds Ike's Stand On "K" Plan

LONDON (Reuters) - Two British newspapers see hope that Nikita Khrushchev's disarmament proposals may be modified and made useful. The Guardian, Liberal, and the Edinburgh Scotsman, Independent, take this stand in commenting on the start of the Russian leader's talks with President Eisenhower.

The Guardian praises Eisenhower for having "steadily re-fused to join the American press" in condemning the Khrushchev proposals.

These proposals "cannot all be accepted as they stand." The Guardian said, "but it might be possible to define them in negotiation to some-thing not very different from the various disengagement plans that have been put forward in the West."

The Scotsman says "President Eisenhower's hands are to some extent tied" because "he has seen what American opinion about Russia is and that must make him hesitate to be positive in his dealings with Russia."

As for Khrushchev, "behind all that propanganda and the regrettable emphasis on pres-tige there may be a real intention on the part of Russia to seek a settlement."

'Merchandise All Wool Or Purest Shoddy?'

NEW YORK (AP)-Many newspapers in the United States are doubtful of Soviet Premier Khru-

Still others say Khrushchev should now realize that the people, not the government; are the boss in the U.S. Among newspapers expressing skepticism of his sin-cerity is The San Francisco Chronicle. It says:

Khrushchev "is offering a product for which there is universal and aching demand . . . the smiling Muscovite is selling humanity's aggod dream, the millenium, peace on earth . . . whether his merchandise is all wool or purest shoddy, durable or flimsy . . . are grave questions . . .

Camp David-and Goliath

MR. EISENHOWER AND MR. Khrushchev meet today while the echoes of the latter's plan for total, world-wide disarmament still reverberate around the globe. It is not to be thought, however, that the talks at Camp David will do more than touch on such a vast concept, or even arrive at a valid assessment of its sincerity.

More probably the talks will disclose the intent of Mr. Khrushchev's alternative plan-a composite of suggestions for a reduction of foreign troops in Europe, a central European zone free of nuclear weapons, liquidation of foreign bases and a non-aggression pact.

Even in this case it would not be wise to predict much progress, since most of these items have already been talked over many times without appreciable benefit.

That is not to say, however, that the present talks will be wasted or that they should not be held. If there is to be any hope of settlement between East and West at all, it must start in such face-to-face discussions. The ice that is broken at Camp David may be melted when Mr. Eisenhower visits Moscow, and converted at a still later date into a flow of productive words and actions from the

Even the universal disarmament proposal, no matter how visionary it may seem at this moment, must not be dismissed out of hand as insincere or impracticable. It must be retained as an ultimate goal and a subject of present analysis and negotiation. We must not dismiss an opportunity to achieve some good, merely because it does not guarantee perfection. Disarmament need not be an all-or-nothing pro cess. The likelihood is that we shall achieve it and the consequent safeguarding of peace—only through a series of slow, painfully-

In this regard the latest statement of U.S. Secretary of State Herter is important. He warns that we must not underestimate the Soviet proposal but on the contrary the closest attention and study-a sentiment echoed, incidenby Mr. Lester Pearson.

This official U.S. attitude is in contrast to previous almost automatic rejections of Russian overtures—vetoes imposed sometimes even before the State Department had received the official translation of the Soviet message. It is true that a large element of propaganda may be involved in Mr. Khrushchev's offer, but even a small move toward dismantling the world's costly structure of 'arma-ment should be encouraged.

The Camp David talks will provide the first opportunity in such favorable circumstances for exploration of the idea. It will find President Eisenhower reinforced in his as a man of peace, and his country in a new state of receptivity to Soviet offers.

This situation arises largely from Mr. Khrushchev's visit to the United States. It is a new condition that extends to the Soviet leader as well, for he now meets Mr. Eisenhower with a multitude of new ideas and impressions in mind. For the first time in his life Mr. Khrushchev has seen the United Statesa very fragmentary glimpse, it is but a personal experience nevertheless.

Much of his attitude at Camp David, much of his attitude in world affairs from now on, will be determined by the impressions the visitor has formed during his tour.

He has been cheered and booed, he has been applauded and heckled. He has seen industries, farms, government representatives and working people. He has met with warm welcomes from industrial executives and angry questions from trade union officials. He has visited the country's biggest city of commerce and its biggest city of make-believe. And he has played, in turn, the elder statesman, the campaigning politician, the clown, the apprecia tive trencherman, the baited bear, the smiling guest and the earnest

What he has seen has been as kaleidoscopic as what he has shown. But somewhere along the line Mr. Khrushchev has formed an idea of he mental climate of America; he has assessed this vast and varied people and arrived at a measure of their strength and their goodwill. That judgment, much more than eorn samples, hog statistics, and memories of handclasps, will be the important thing the visitor takes home with him. It will be the vital outcome of the visit-and nobody in the West knows what it is.

As yet Mr. Khrushchev has given no accurate indication of his thoughts. Has he seen Americans as men of goodwill, as simpletons ignorant of international affairs, as idlers interested only in the can-can. as implacable enemies of all that he believes in, as friendly but suspicious folk who will respond to sincerity but reject duplicity? Only time will answer these questions. the answer will affect every inhabitant of the globe.

This year the objective is $325,-000. It is the largest collection at-tempted yet. The need is the great-est yet. Twenty-two agencies now lump their annual appeal into one local campaign. none other than the former Minister of Public Security in other words, the head of the Chinese Communist secret police Gen. Lo Jui-Ching.

In every totalitarian society in our time, just as much in Nazi Germany as in the Soviet Union, the relations between the regular armed forces and the secret police have always been venomous and embittered. Thus the choice of the secret police chief to run the army under the ailing Lin Piao, is a truly astonishing event.

Think of Hitler naming Himmler to head the German General Staff. Think of Stalin naming Beria to head the Red Army. These comparisons give you the event's true measure.

This strange event can only mean that grave and widespread disaffection is believed to exist in the Chinese Com munist armed forces. This evidence of disaffection in the armed forces is not especially surprising, moreover, in view of the strong evidence of general politi-

Assessing Mr. K's Proposals

By Walter Lippmann, from Washington.

MR. KHRUSHCHEV'S set speech at the U.N. was hard to follow as he delivered it, and it is not easy to read.

But if I have understood him rightly, he proposed not one but two programs of "dis-armament." One is for "general and complete disarmament." This is to be carried out by mutual agreement in three stages within a four-year period and it is to end in the de-

Lippmann struction of all arms but small ones, the abolition of con-scription and military training, the endbut small ones, ing of research for war purposes, the dismantling of general staffs, and so forth. The second and separate set of proposals contains a list of "partial measures of disarmament."

Clear Explanation

It is reasonably clear General Assembly of the United Na-tions Mr. K. wishes to have the debate turn on Plan One for general and com plete disarmament. But at Camp David and at the meetings which follow it he appears to wish to negotiate about Plan Two for partial disarmament.

Besides this, the address contains a clear, though not very explicit, explanation of his attitude towards our Western demands for inspection and control.

The crux of it is that as long as the great powers are in a race of armaments, secrecy is a most valuable military asset to the Soviet Union, It is a closed society and it is able, therefore, to maintain a higher degree of secrecy than is the United States which is an society.

Therefore, under an effective sys-Therefore, under an effective sys-tem of international inspection and con-trol the Soviet Union would lose the advantage which it now possesses. Through the inspectors and controllers the Western coalition would obtain in-formation about Soviet military capacity which it is not now able to attain through its intelligence services.

Complete Disclosure

From this analysis Mr. K.'s reasoning is that only if there were total dising is that only if there were total disarmament would it be safe for him to agree to complete disclosure of all military information. Only if the powers agreed that in four yeaks they would liquidate their military establishments could the Soviet Union agree to an inspection which would verify their liquidation, and keep watch after that.
But if the race of armaments is idcontinue, even at a reduced rate, the Soviet Union will not agree to inspection which deprives it of the advantages of military secrecy.

fresh and attired

of military secrecy.

Mr. K. is, of course, well aware that except perhaps in very large generalities about peace and disarmament the United States and its allies are not going to accept Plan One for general and com-plete disarmament.

Mr. K is also aware of our insis-tence on inspection and control for the tence on inspection and control for the purpose of knowing whether the agreed measures of disarmament are being New York: Floyd Gibbons, noted correspondent died carried out on both sides, of the line, last night at his How does Mr. K. deal with this in view in Pennsyl of his basic conviction that international of heart di- inspection would be a Western intellivania, of heart digence operation?

An examination of his five measures for partial disarmament shows, I think that they have a common characteristic. With one exception dealing with "surprise attack" his proposals do not depend in any difficult degree on inspection. They would be comparatively easy to inspect and control without any pene-tration of the Soviet Union itself. For they apply to continental Europe out-side the Soviet Union.

In all this territory, even east of the Iron Curtain, our secret intelligence is good enough to audit a modest amount of official inspection.

Of the five proposals the first two are the most substantial and the most immediately interesting for a possible negotiation.

The first proposal calls for "the establishment of a control and inspection zone with the reduction of foreign troops" in the territories of the corresponding countries of Western Europe. This was originally put forward as a Western idea, and it the bounds of what might profitably be negotiated.

It does not call for "disarmament" "disengagement" but for some "redeployment

"redeployment."

The second proposal is for a variant of the Rapacki Plan which would prohibit nuclear weapons in a zone which would include the two Germanies, Poland, and Czechoslovakia. There are objections to the proposal. But they are not so absolute that one must dismiss the proposal as not negotiable. the proposal as not negotiable.

Full Withdrawal The third proposal is for the withdrawal of "all foreign troops from the territories of European states and liquidation of military bases in foreign This proposal is, of course, unacceptable Under existing conditions we shall not retire from Europe. But if Mr. K. wants to talk with the President about the idea, why should the President re-fuse? He can explain to Mr. K. what would have to happen first in Europe before we could retire our troops. The fourth proposal is for a non-aggression pact between N.A.T.O. and the Warsaw Treaty states. It is hard to see any serious objection to this, or for that matter any great value in it. The fifth proposal sounds as if it were an afterthought inserted to catch the attention of the President. It is an "agreement on the prevention of su prise attacks." Nothing is likely to come of this. For this is the kind of agree-ment which, if nations were to believe in it, requires just that kind of pervasive inspection of military secrets which the Soviet Union most objects to.

Worth Discussing

Nevertheless, although two of the proposals for our retirement from Europe and for the prevention of surrise attacks are unrealistic, there are tree proposals which are well within the field of serious and thoroughgoing discussion and negotiations.

They are the thinning out of foreign-troops in Central Europe, the denu clearization of that area, and as an agreeable saure for the omelet, a nonaggression pact between N.A.T.O. and

Three millenia later. the prophesy remains un-fulfilled although, in one form or another, it re-mains at the heart of most of the world's great religions. Now a militant atheist— "militant" in every sense of the word—has come forward with a plan. Nikita Khrushchev in four years would accomplish what the great religious leaders and their followers have failed to do in centuries.

Does he mean it? Is this the greatest peace plan the world has ever known? Or one of the cruellest hoaxes?

This question continues to dominate conversation at the UN and, by now, it has resulted in probably the most thorough, international chewing over any speech has ever received. It started as soon as the speech was over when the corridors and lounges filled with a thousand diplomats, several hundred of their guests who had filled the visitors' galleries, 400 newsmen who had been admitted, and several score more who hadn't. (There were so many reporters on hand that desks and type-writers overflowed into the hall. It seemed like the press gallery in Ottawa except that the UN corridor is clean and carpeted and no attempt was made to hide the press behind a cardboard wall.)

With the exception of some neutralists, and of course the Communists, the majority view is regretfully—that it was a hoax. And, as a matter of fact, some people think that, even as propaganda, it has shortcom-

For one thing Mr. Khrushchev should have ended the speech with his dramatic abolish-all-armies peace proposal. Instead he took the emotional edge off it when he went on to lecture the delegates on the shortcoming of the UN and advocate a policy which would mean the virtual emasculation of the Organization. There is too much controversy in debate, he said, advocating discussion only of matters on which there will be "complete unanimity." In other words he would convert the UN into an international equivalent of a Communist Party Congress.

More important, Mr. K. would have received a better hearing if he had made concession as an indication of good faith and reasonableness. Instead, he re-thrashed and reasonableness. old arguments and, in particular, he raised doubts on the all-important question of

'FEW REGULARS' CARRY BLOOD-GIVING BURDEN

Red Cross drive for 600 pints of blood in a twoday drive this week fell short by close to half its goal

Only 374 pints were collected in the clinic held Wednesday and Thursday at Red Cross House, "Of course we're thankful for what we received," said donor panel secretary Mrs. Raiph Thistle, but it's not really enough.

"Most of it was donated by a few regulars who keep coming back time after time and it's not fair that they should carry the whole load."

'Skullduggery' In Land Deal Claims Dowell

Ald. Arthur Dowell Thursday said "there is skulldug-gery all the way through" a land sale decision made by city council at its last meeting.

He would not elaborate on his statement to aldermen. But council rejected his suggestion and the complaint of a real estate company that it had acted "completely contrary to ethical business practices" Also rejected was an offer by the unsuccessful bidder to meet the highest tender to get the property.

"I think we did what was right and just," said Ald. M.

Ald. Hugh Ramsav also defended council's decision to sell several lots on Kingston Street to C. Gordon Chapman Ltd., Toronto, for $32,100, the highest bid on a second tender call.

But Ald, Dowell maintained "we were morally obligated to accept the first tender."

B.C. Land and Investment Agency, agent for a Vancouver group headed by Gerald Ham-ilton, also maintained that council had violated ethics by calling for a second tender after it had been sole bidder for the property. "Completely contrary ethical business practices, this property was again adverproperty was again adver-tised for sale after Mr. Ham-ilton's bid and intentions had been made public," the B.C. Land letter said, (Mr. Hamilton, who bid $22, 500, disclosed that he planned to build a $1,000,000 apartment building on the property, the former site of the Camosun Tennis Club, when his bid was opened by council at the first tender call.)

MEET PRICE

B.C. Land said although "upset" by the result of the second tender call, in which two higher bids were entered by other firms who also said they would build similar apart-ments, Mr. Hamilton was prepared to meet the $32,100 price of the successful tenderer.

Ald. Ramsay said the let-er's implication that Mr. Hamilton had initiated interest in the property was incorrect because that was done by King Realty Ltd., which first proposed construction of an apartment building during pri-vate talks with Mayor Percy Scurrah and city manager C. C. Wyatt (King Realty subsequently failed to enter a bid when the property was put up for tender but later asked for s second tender in a letter to

Ald. Ramsay also said it was true "there were unfortunate complications" in the first tender call but it was "incorrect to describe council's action as unethical."

Ald. Mooney said the matter was out of city council's hands because it had accepted the bid and could not

Next Door Sandown Sensation

He might be the kid next door, the boy who delivers your newspaper or the youngster who calls on your teen

He might be any of these. But he isn't.

His name is Peter Clark.

He's 17, cleancut and an apprentice jockey.

He comes from California, the sunshine state. Butursday he found British Columbia rain refreshing, exhilarating, wonderful.

Precisely at 5.08 p.m. he crossed the finish line first in the sixth race at Sandown Park, near Sidney, aboard Akin, a three-year-old filly. She represented his eighth consecutive winning mount in three days of racing.

People, 2,500 of them, stood and cheered. Handclaps

Announcer Jack Short intoned: "This is a dramatic feat, ladies and gentlemen. Jockey Pete Clark has set a new world's riding record."

Pete Clark didn't hear Short in all the din. In the hot, sweaty jockeys' boudoir, he pulled off his boots slowly.

A reporter stuck out his hand, said, "Congratulations. Jack Short says you have just set a world's record.'
Clark looked up solemnly.

"You're kidding," he said.

Ticket on Clark Perfect Way To Beat Races

A florid, excited woman, clutching a $2 bill roared up to a seller's wicket at Sandown just before the sixth race Thursday and said: "Gimme a ticket on Clark."

Ultimately the lady got a ticket - on Akin, a three-year filly. She didn't care whether the horse's name was that mattered was that the horse was ridden by jockey Peter Clark, 17, from Red Wednesday. Could he keep it big strong horses?

The seller looked puzzled, afternoon. Bramoney was bet asked the seller.

"I don't know," said the woman. "All I know is I wanna ticket on Clark."

"I don't know," said the woman "All I know is I wanna ticket on Clark." won driving and paid $5.60. Clark sat out the third and fourth then took Loretta's

Babe out in the fifth. By this time Sandown was so soggy with moisture even Akin or E Pluribus Unum. All the seagulfs were taking their business someplace else

The ducks and people who persevered obviously didn't think Loretta's Babe and Clark at Sandown Thursday. Everybody had the Clark hysteria. Clark took Loretta's Babe Nearly everybody thought to the front at the break and so in the second race when defied the rest to pass. Nobody Clark stared, unbelieving. He looked like a man who has just been handed a million dollars.

Across the room, jockey Ron Williams said, almost re-setfully. That a boy, Peter. A world's record is a pretty.

Lafer it developed that Mr. Clark doesn't own a world's record—yet. Sir Gordon Richards rode 12 successive win-ners in England back in 1933. And hardboot Albert Adams posted nine wins in a row at Marlboro, Md., in 1930. In addition Howard Grant succeeded with eight consecutive mounts at Waterford Park, Md., in 1951.

All these illustrious pilots achieved those feats on horses in consecutive races. Clark began his skein with two wins on his only two mounts Saturday. He followed

To prove it was no fluke he repeated Thursday.

He lit a cigaret, inhaied deeply. He seemed on the verge of spilling out a lot of words. But none came

Did the pressure bother him?

I never realized how many winners Td ridden until just before that last one. I knew I was doing pretty well and then when I went on the track that last race, I could not be the control of the could be the control of sort of feel that the people were looking for me to do it

"I didn't worry about it exactly. But I didn't want to let those people down."

How did he get in this riding business?

Well, my dad was a pretty fair rider before the war. . he was a big help. He faught me little things

"CONGRATULATIONS, PETE," was the customary salutation given 17-year-old apprentice jockey Pete Clark at Sandown Thursday as he rode his eighth straight winner since the meeting opened Saturday. Here presiding steward Wilson Dunn extends his * * * CAMPBELL RIVER - An inquiry was to be held today by Dr N. B. Hall, coroner, into the drowning Thursday at Brewster Lake of three-year-old Gordon O'Brien of Camp Five. .

The tragedy occurred at Brewster Lake, near Camp Five where the lad fell from a smell toot. It is believed he was climbing out of a boat when he fell into the water.

He was found by a young companion, and a first aid at tendant from the camp applied artificial respiration, but with-out success. The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien.

Following birds to Victoria from somewhere south of the border proved too tough a task for this racing pigeon. He crash-landed on the deck of CPSS Princess Marguerite halfway between Seattle and Vancouver about noon Thursday. Ship's chief engineer, G. P. Cameron, saw the bird hit the deck with a thump. Thinking it was injured, he took it to the SPCA when the ship docked here. SPCA officials examined the bird, found it uninjured but just plain tired out. It is being fed and cared for at small animal shelter. Pigeon, a young one, is un-

Q. What is the annual precipitation recorded by the weatherships at Station Papa? L. M. P.

A. W. H. Mackie, officer in charge of the Victoria City Weather Office, supplies the following answer:

It should be pointed out that it is difficult to measure precipitation at sea due to the influence of such factors as strong winds against the superstructure of the ship, the rolling of the ship itself and the rough seas.

However, measurements taken aboard the weatherships during the period 1953 to 1959 show the following average monthly and annual values,

Jan, 2.94; Feb. 1.47; Mar. 1.72; Apr. 1.46; May 1.46; June 1.29; July 1.13; Aug. 2.01; Sept. 2.48; Oct. 3.62; Nov. 3.52; Dec. 2.92.

Absolutely No Calories In This New Fruit Juice! By PENNY SAVER

There's a new star in the weight-watcher's firmament! It's pineappie-grapefruit juice that's just bursting with vitamin C, delicious AND way, way down in calorie count. Miracle is that it's sweetened with a non-calorie "sugar".

Made from sun-ripened Hawaiian pineapples, in frozen concentrate form and tangy Florida grapefruit. It's available now in quick-frozen form, ready to be enjoyed with a clear conscience by millions of health-conscious Canadians who guard their weight by calorie-watching.

Approximately 39 calories to a 4-ounce serving, juice is fortified with about 19 mgs. of vitamin C per 4 ounce serving.

—the vitamin needed every day by everyone.

A between-meal pickup snack of this juice and two slices of melba toast or a crisp, wheat biscuit will tally less than 70 calories! New drink may be used as the delicious liquid in plain gelatine or sugar-free gelatine desserts, to add nourishment and flavor to low-calorie molded salads and desserts.

HOW IS IT

BE FINISHED?

If a natural finish is deaired, use equal proportions of raw ilinseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This mo' onl protects the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and the grain. If a colored finish is desired *FOREST saling can mended that a sharp instrument to use to score the finished product underneath the but twhere it will not show to stop formation of a vapor barrier.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

Peace-or Cruel Hoax?

NEW YORK Beside a little grove of and no attempt was made to hide the press trees on United Nations Plaza in New York is inscribed the famous quotation from Isaiah: "They shall beat their ords into plowshares swords and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation; neither shall they learn war any

Three millenia later, the prophesy remains unfulfilled although, in one form or another, it remains at the heart of most of the world's great religions. Now a militant atheist— "militant" in every sense of the word—has, come forward with a plan. Nikita Khrush-chev in four years would, accomplish what the great religious leaders and their followers have failed to do in centuries.

Does he mean it? Is this the greatest peace plan the world has ever known? Or of the cruellest hoaxes?

This question continues to dominate con versation at the UN and, by now, it has resulted in probably the most thorough, international chewing over any speech has ever received. It started as soon as the speech was over when the corridors and lounges filled with a thousand diplomats, several hundred of their guests who had filled the visitors' galleries, 400 newsmen who had been admitted, and several score more who hadn't. (There were so many reporters on hand that desks and type-writers overflowed into the hall. It seemed like the press gallery in Ottawa except that the UN corridor is clean and carpeted behind a cardboard wall !

₩ ★ ★ With the exception of some neutralists, and of course the Communists, the majority view is regretfully that it was a hoax. And, as a matter of fact, some people think that, even as propaganda, it has shortcom-

For one thing Mr. Khrushchev should have ended the speech with his dramatic abolish all armies peace proposal. Instead he took the emotional edge off it when he went on to lecture the delegates on the shortcoming of the UN and advocate a policy which would mean the virtual emasculation of the Organization. There is too much controversy in debate, he said, advocating discussion only of matters on which there will be "complete unanimity." In other words he would convert the UN into an international equivalent of a Communist Congress.

More important, Mr. K. would have received a better hearing if he had made concession as an indication of good faith and reasonableness. Instead, he re-thrashed old arguments and, in particular, he raised doubts on the all-important question of inspection

Specifically, he created the impression he favors disarmament first and inspection later.

He said, for example, that when there is complete disarmament then there will be no inspection problem because there will be "nothing to hide." Inspectors would then be able to exert themselves "to the hilt." But what about the interim period when there is only partial disarmament? The Russian statement said virtually nothing

Q. What is the annual precipitation recorded by the weatherships at Station Papa? L. M. P.

A. W. H. Mackie, officer in charge of the Victoria City Weather Office, supplies the following answer:

It should be pointed out that it is difficult to measure precipitation at sea due to the influence of such factors as strong winds against the superstructure of the ship, the rolling of the ship itself and the rough seas.

However, measurements taken aboard the weatherships during the period 1953 to 1959 show the following average monthly and annual values.

Jan, 2.94; Feb. 1.47; Mar. 1.72; Apr. 1.46; May 1.46; June 1.29; July 1.13; Aug. 2.01; Sept. 2.48; Oct. 3.62; Nov. 3.52; Dec. 2.92,
